

A Message from Christ Michael through Diana – Communications

Good morning my daughter it is time for us to sit and work with you for the first time in your life time, we have been observing you and your work over many lifetimes and feel the time is right now for us to come together and unite, my name is Michael of Nebadon, also known as Christ Michael and I bring you my blessings.

I would like to look at a few topics this morning one of them being communication, this is something that many of you do not do enough of and you isolate yourselves in groups of ones, twos, threes and so on feeling conspicuous and the odd man out but this is something that will be ending, in the future of your world as we have stated often the dark ones will be removed through many different ways and the light will start to shine through getting into all the cracks and crevices of your society as it is known. Once this happens you will feel more able to communicate with other members of your world and the isolation will come to an end as you grow closer with the ability to trust and enjoy other peoples company, as it has always been said like attracts like and this is so.

The other side to communication is the art of listening to what people say, this is an art form that has mainly fallen in to disuse a great shame but many of you spend a large amount of time in front of media entertainment and do not have the time set aside for conversation between yourselves, it is one thing to ask about each others days but another to spend time and enjoy the company of other people to learn from their experiences and views. Many of you have vast experience to share and it is a great shame that this is not taken advantage of but again it will be balanced out when the future of your world unfolds as time will be used differently not monopolised by the dark ones and there is to be the opportunity for learning groups to evolve to share the knowledge that you carry not just from this life time but from many others, you have a lot to give and even more to learn.

Many of you feel we do not communicate with you, you feel our silence is our neglect; I wish to make this clear that it is not the fact at all just the opposite. Do you not sense us near you at odd times feel the shiver going down your spine, do you not see the little bird sitting on the tree branch outside your window, do you not hear the lyrics of the song on your radio that makes you stop and think, do you not smell the air when it is fresh after the rain has fallen enjoy the scenery when out in the countryside. Well this is us communicating with you, who do you think gives you the thought to contact a friend, or take a walk in the countryside; this is us. When you are still and in such situations we can communicate with you and in such varied ways that you are often unaware of this, until the time when you suddenly get inspiration to help with a situation or solve a problem.

Communication as you understand it is very limited and limiting, as you go forward into your new world you will learn that there are many other ways of communicating and to take the time to stop and smell the roses is just one of the ways of telling us you love us and are thinking of us and therefore are of us. To take the time to stop and just be for a moment each day is just the start of learning how to communicate with us, your planet and with others. Some of you meditate daily whilst this is excellent, this is not something that everyone has the skills or confidence to do and we wish to make it clear that it is a simple thing to communicate with us and encourage all to do this.

Many of you are just beginning to understand that your mother earth has been trying to communicate with you for centuries she has limited ways to do this but again to stop and listen to learn to communicate properly, will enable you to tune into her love and understand what is going on within her being; thus drawing you closer together for the future of your world and existence.

The above is with my love and blessings to you all and it is so.

Michael of Nebadon.
