

S333 – A Robust Exchange of Views

S333: Good Morning Old Chap, I have come to speak with you today.

Vince: Good Morning David, how are you?

S333: As you would say; not bad!

I am weighing up the pros and cons of certain actions as we speak in an attempt to break the log jam of our recent glitch in what we were trying to achieve, and there are no easy options, it appears.

Vince: Are there ever any easy options?

Listen, I'm not upset by what has not happened; the failure of a giant Stasis to appear. I really mean it when I say; "It happens when it happens." I'm really ticked off with the Dark Ones when I see them stirring the broth in the cooking pot ready to receive us, and knowing that a group of millionaires and billionaires are screwing up life for ordinary people, with the desire to impose the death penalty on us and as much hardship that they can manage.

But, if the alternative in the immediate future would be a hefty pull on a rusty lever and Mama Earth shudders to a halt and we all get hurt, then give me the present situation any time.

Are we adults or not? Or are we just immature children waiting for a party who can't wait a few more weeks or months, and have to have it now and bugger the consequences? It would seem that many people are so.

S333: Can you blame them? Many of them are in far worse situations than you are.

Vince: Don't you dare get into me on that one. How did you suddenly become the arbiter of what seems bad to whom? You haven't a clue what it's like living in this dimension, and if you did, you would know that things are relative, and what is bad to one person isn't to another; whatever the appearance to outsiders may be. You don't have a clue how I'm suffering!!!!!!

S333: You're right I don't, and I owe you an apology for putting my remark in that way. What I meant was that there are those with very serious money problems who are nearly at the ends of their tethers, and they are hurting badly.

Vince: And I'm not? You haven't got a clue matey!!!

Listen, I'm not signed in to a conversation with you for an argument, so say what you've got to, and then clear off, eh?

S333: Not very spiritual, eh?

Vince: Well, has it escaped your notice that my health is bad? I've opened up to you for a message, and will take what health consequences come with that, and that's adult. So either get on with it, or finish it now please and then I can go and sleep for a few hours.

S333: I didn't come here for an argument either, and came to offer some comfort to you ones and say that despite a setback we are still making progress. In the middle of a long campaign there are always setbacks, and temporary withdrawals prior to further waves of attack, and there will be further waves, soon enough.

Vince: Soon enough for whom, you or me?

S333: Soon enough to give the Dark Ones a hard time.

Vince: I don't want them to have a hard time; I want them to be annihilated!!! Seeing some of those smug bastards on British TV makes me want to vomit. There they are, announcing plans to rob the population even more through taxation and other devious methods, and the population does nothing to stop them, and you have failed so far too!!!

S333: I see you love them with a passion.

Vince: I'm not going to allow you to extract any more remarks from me on the subject.

S333: Good. Well, whatever you think, they are still the authors of their own downfall, and the clock is ticking for them. It doesn't matter whether it is days, weeks or months before they are swept away; their demise is assured.

That's the message; they are on their way out and can't see it through the mist of celebrations for their own current success.

Let me explain it to you in a graphical way. Do you remember the mid to late 1970's, when Watney's Red Barrel beer was at the peak of its success in England? Every TV ad-break, every hoarding, every football ground; they all had Watney's Red Barrel ads, didn't they? It was pushed at you in every licensed premises and bottle shop, and it was everywhere 24/7.

And then one day, it wasn't there, and everyone breathed a sigh of relief. The same will be true of the Dark Ones, and their demise is inevitable, but it wasn't in the last few weeks and in the way that many of you thought it would be.

Vince: Thanks to how you told us it would be, you mean.

S333: Yes, I can't deny that. I put it down to being one of those things that happen every so often, and we just have to re-jig our efforts and continue with the battle. Don't be downhearted, for the time will arrive soon enough.

Vince: I'm not downhearted, for it was Monjoronson who said to me that I should concentrate on his teaching mission, as that was the most positive thing to do, and that's what I've done; except that I've had a health setback and have done less than I would have liked to.

As you know, I can find a laugh in the bleakest of personal situations, and I'm not going down the childish route. But I'm certainly not going to let celestials tell me that my situation is better than another's, because you are in no position to judge that.

Give a down & out man a sausage, and he is as rich as a king for a few minutes, and take a pound away from a billionaire and he will feel all the poorer. Yes, these positions are extremes, but the emotions and the sense of gain or loss are personal to the individual and they genuinely feel these things. Pain to one person can be greater than to another, and we all feel it differently, and the pain is genuine and can be severe; such is the 'joy' of living in the material world.

You should try it for a few thousand years and see if you like it. I've been here in various incarnations over the last 5,500 years, and the novelty wore off a long time ago. So I say to you; "Get your shit together, and give it to the Dark Ones before they give us Light Ones any more of their brand of financial and physical slavery!"

And on that note, I'm bringing this session to a close.

A Note to Erethea Readers

It has always been my intention to transcribe and publish these messages and conversations exactly as they happened, and this is still the case. This one caught me on a day when I felt life's great pain very strongly, and I conveyed that to S333 accordingly. Vince.

This is the record of a telepathic discussion between S333 of the Spiritual Hierarchy and Vince. 19th July 2010