MORE than 200 budding young actors, singers and dancers put on an exhilarating show for their parents at an arts day at Lutterworth Performing Arts Centre on Friday.

Youngsters from Thomas Estley Community College, Broughton Astley, were joined by pupils from its six feeder primary schools, Orchard, Hallbrook and Old Mill in the village, as well as others in Whetstone and Cosby.

They were given the day to come up with a show which would be presented to parents arriving that evening.

Thomas Estley vice-principal Chris Freeman said: "It was a brilliant performance, especially as it was put together in a matter of hours.

"The feedback we have had from parents and pupils is great. They all really enjoyed working together, and I think the experience of being in a real theatre school for the day was great for the children."
