

Having problems hearing music files?

The music on the web-site are mp3 files designed to run within Windows Media Player, which is installed as standard in all PCs and will work perfectly if you are using Internet Explorer as your search engine / browser.

However, many people prefer to use other search engines, such as Firefox, Chrome etc.

It is perfectly possible to hear the files using these but often you will need the Windows Media plug-in. This is free to download and once installed you should be able to hear the choir's dulcet tones in all their glory.

I am more than willing to help any choir member if necessary. Just let me know.

I would be interest to hear if you are having problems, particularly which search engine / browser you are using.
