INTRODUCTION

Lambert Smith Hampton was requested to market the Marshalls site in the village of Bleadon and, following instructions, commenced the marketing campaign in November 2011. The intention at the outset was to seek a new owner-occupier for the site and it was on this basis that the site was initially marketed.

This report on set outs the process of marketing that has been undertaken in the twelve months that the site was on the market and provides findings for the exercise.

The report has been prepared as part of the supporting material for a planning application.

3. MARKET COMMENTARY

3.1 Introduction

The Marshall's premises have been marketed for over 12 months, and industrial occupiers have been sought in that time to purchase the site.

This report demonstrates the steps that have been taken in seeking an occupier and the results of that activity. The following section provides further understanding of the current market and reflects on the reasons why this site has not found an industrial occupier in the period since 2011.

3.2 General

The North Somerset economy has fared no better than the rest of the UK over the recent economic downturns, which began to deteriorate over four years ago. The area has seen little evidence of a meaningful recovery and as and when this does begin, it is expected to be gradual rather than dramatic.

The lack of available finance to occupiers and developers has led to a stalling of market transactions and this has inevitably resulted in a downturn in property and land values. Existing houses and land suitable for residential development have been particularly badly hit, with very little prospect for a return to the values of 2007.

Demand for existing commercial properties has also slowed notably, in particular in tertiary locations such as Bleadon, where latent demand is minimal. Take-up has mainly been concentrated in the larger conurbations including Bristol, Birmingham and Exeter.

The development of new facilities for commercial uses have been largely restricted to the main commercial centre Avonmouth in the region, with virtually no new buildings of any note witnessed elsewhere in the region.

Undoubtedly the superior motorway links and readily available labour supply in Avonmouth and Bridgwater have been the driving forces behind these activities, but even towns like Weston-super-Mare have struggled to attract occupiers.

Occupiers and investors have adopted a "flight to quality" approach to property, where they are noticeably more concerned about the ability to future-proof their assets. As a result they are tending to focus more on the prospects for future disposal of their premises, which is drawing them closer to motorway junctions.

3.3 The local market

Bleadon is not an established industrial location. Although it is located within 4 miles of Weston-super-Mare, it does not benefit from easy access on to the M5 Motorway and is consequently overlooked by the majority of storage and distribution occupiers. Within the period of marketing the subject premises there have been no industrial relocations in the area.

Weston-super-Mare and surrounding areas has also seen a dearth of industrial freehold transactions in the 15,000 – 40,000 sq ft size bracket. There have been no notable acquisitions on comparable sites in these areas throughout the duration of the marketing campaign.

There are no known unmet requirements at present for comparable industrial or commercial space in the area.

3.4 Summary

The existing Marshalls site is unfortunately too large for its location so will always struggle to attract a commercial occupier. A continued use for manufacturing is unlikely due to the fact that this sector has been struggling for many years, and it is too far removed from the motorway network to be a viable distribution facility. The configuration of the buildings and the restrictive access in to the site also detracts from the desirability in the market.

This position is likely to only get worse in the future as new allocations of employment space in Weston-super-Mare are likely to be developed and provide more attractive locations for employers seeking commercial space.

4. MARKETING STRATEGY

Following an appointment by the site owner a marketing strategy was prepared by Lambert Smith Hampton in order to identify a purchaser for the site. This strategy involved the whole range of marketing activities, which are described below.

In order to fully expose the property to the commercial market, it was agreed that the following marketing initiatives were implemented:-

4.1 Brochure & mailing

A marketing company were commissioned to prepare professionally produced property particulars (Appendix 1), for which we used aerial photography to fully illustrate the extent of the demise. The draft details were formerly approved by the client on 23rd January 2012. 500 brochures were printed.

On 30th March 2012 Lambert Smith Hampton undertook a substantial mailing exercise, to cover 540 industrial occupiers whose businesses are centred on B1, B2 & B8 industrial uses (Appendix 2). The brochure was sent via email.

On 11th October 2012 Lambert Smith Hampton undertook another substantial mailing exercise, to cover over 400 industrial occupiers whose businesses are centred around the use of open storage (Appendix 3). Hard copies of the brochure were posted to the occupiers.

In addition, the brochure was also sent to David Wells, an Economic Development Officer at North Somerset Council, for inclusion on their property register. The brochure went live on www.investwest.org on 6th February 2012. (Appendix 4)

4.2 Advertising

LSH carried out national marketing to maximise the property's exposure. On 28th April 2012 we ran the advert nationally in the Estates Gazette (Appendix 5), the commercial property industry's prime publication. The advert was deliberately designed generically to allow us to appeal to the maximum number of applicants.

4.3 Website

LSH added the property to its list of available premises on its website (www.lsh.co.uk) which provides direct links to EG Propertylink (www.estatesgazette.com/propertylink/) and Focus databases (www.focusnet.co.uk/).

Screen shots of these postings are included in Appendix 6 and illustrate that these have been in place since 31st January 2012. This provides access to the most relevant and widely consulted industry websites used by the industry.

4.4 Quoting Terms

At the time marketing commenced back in 2011 it was considered that an initial quoting price of £750,000 would be an accurate reflection of the market value.

4.5 Results

As a result of the marketing initiatives a number of enquiries were generated. It should be noted that the majority of enquiries were as a direct result of the national advert in the Estates Gazette. The schedule of enquiring parties have been included in Appendix 7.

5. SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

LSH undertook a comprehensive and appropriate marketing campaign in a bid to extract best value out of the sale of the site. The market has demonstrated a distinct lack of enthusiasm for the product in its current form, largely as it is considered to be too large for the location and the poor infrastructure is not conducive to manufacturing or distribution facilities on this scale.

Despite extensive marketing over the past 12 months, the only genuine interest received was from developers looking to purchase the site for non-employment use.

Our ref: BTC.LPJ.0115.1

15 January 2013

Dear Mr Beare

MARSHALLS' SITE AT BLEADON

Would you kindly add this to your summary of the marketing exercise?

As you know, you and I agreed at the outset that I had a better supply of technical data and information about this client's site than you did. We agreed that if any enquirers became interested in significantly detailed information about the site's characteristics and constraints, they would be referred to me.

Accordingly, I had perhaps half a dozen telephone conversations with a number of people purporting to express interest in acquiring the site. However, every single one of them was in fact interested in acquiring the site purely to exploit residential development potential, and had no interest whatsoever in the current use or associated employment uses.

In fact I have not spoken to anybody who showed any interest in the site other than as a potential house building site.

I understand that this aligns closely with your own marketing experience but I am pleased to be able to confirm the outcome of enquiries which we dealt with.

Yours sincerely
